Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards (DoLS)

About Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards

The Mental Capacity Act Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards (formerly known as the Bournewood safeguards) were introduced into the Mental Capacity Act 2005 through the Mental Health Act 2007. The aim of the deprivation of liberty safeguards is to provide legal protection for those vulnerable people who are deprived of their liberty otherwise than under the Mental Health Act 1983, to prevent arbitrary decisions to deprive a person of liberty and to give rights to challenge deprivation of liberty authorisations. The safeguards apply to people who lack capacity to consent to care or treatment, and who are suffering from a disorder of the mind. The Government expects that implementation of the safeguards will reduce the numbers of people deprived of their liberty in care homes and hospitals. It is planned that the safeguards will come into effect from 1 April 2009.

About Deprivation of Liberty Safeguards (DoLS) Training

The Royal College of Psychiatrists' Education and Training Centre has worked collaboratively with the Department of Health to produce training materials for doctors as part of a DoLS mental health assessor training programme. Regulations agreed by Parliament in 2008 have specified that Supervisory Bodies (in relation to DoLS) must be satisfied that, to be mental health assessors, medical practitioners must have successfully completed this DoLS mental health assessor programme, made available by the Royal College of Psychiatrists.
